PRairie TO PRORATE OIL RUNS IN KANSAS

Unable to Care for Great Production at El Dorado and Augusta.

Exhibit to the World
AUGUST 5, 1916.—July 3—Confirms from the Kansas City oil fields that production has been prorated since, according to an order issued by the Federal Oil & Gas Co., the oil companies have agreed to limit their output to 150,000 barrels a day will be purchased and that each run up into Prairie Pipe Line company out of a present total production of 190,000 barrels a day.

The ruling each day will be as follows: That each producer will put his production share of his oil out, and it is hoped in this way to end all prorating. The big production in Kansas has come to a stand still, and the oil companies find present time a great opportunity to increase their output. They have one eight-inch line into the field and are building a second eight-inch, but this second line will not be completed for about sixty days.

The Wichita Natural, the largest producer in Kansas, has already cut off a half in its drilling operations, having seen that if they did not stop the building of storage would become inevitable.
